Fund Commentary

The Fund returned 0.32% for the month. The reference portfolio or benchmark was 0.75% for the month. The Fund's monthly correlation to equities (SPY) is 0.43.

Our strategic asset allocation framework replicates the US university endowment model by investing in a diversified portfolio of multiple asset classes (i.e., Private Equity replication, Absolute Returns, Precious Metals, Natural Resources, Real Estate and Infrastructure Assets, US and Global Equities (ex-US), Government Bonds and Corporate Bonds) using liquid, exchanged listed ETFs. The highlight of the gross attribution for the month was positive attribution from long exposures in the Private Equity Replication, U.S. Equity, and Real Estate and Infrastructure Assets of 0.37%, 0.29%, and 0.22%. Exposures in the other asset classes resulted in negative attribution led by Absolute Returns, and Government Bonds which delivered negative attribution of -0.61%, and -0.01% respectively.

We adopt dynamic asset allocation to adapt and adjust asset class allocations; highlights of our asset class exposures at month end include net long exposure in Precious Metals, Private Equity Replication, Real Estate and Infrastructure Assets, and U.S. Equity representing 11.26%, 10.33%, 8.93%, and 8.19% respectively. Long exposures in Corporate Bonds closed higher at 7.98%.

Disciplined risk management is a key objective of the Fund. Risk exposures closed higher in the month with gross exposure at 72.89% (comprising long exposure of 66.22% plus short exposure of 6.67%) versus 58.35% last month. Net exposure closed the month higher at 59.55% (comprising long exposure of 66.22% minus short exposure of 6.67%) and net beta adjusted exposure closed the month higher at 49.14% versus 43.30% last month. Value at Risk (VAR) using 95% confidence level closed the month at 0.44% i.e., 95% confident that the worst daily loss will not exceed 0.44%. We employ a combination of both a systematic and discretionary approach to risk management aiming to reduce risk during periods of (1) higher volatility and (2) drawdowns in the NAV of the Fund.

We continue to focus on a hybrid approach of discretionary fundamental investing and systematic investing emphasizing data-driven insights, scientific testing, and disciplined portfolio construction techniques.
